

Developer wants to add lab space to waterfront project

11.2.07: The Boston Globe

Developer wants to add lab space to waterfront project

By Thomas C. Palmer Jr.

Fan Pier developer Joseph F. Fallon said he wants to add laboratory space to his three-million-square-foot project on the South Boston Waterfront, where he broke ground in September for an office building. Already permitted for office, residential, retail, and hotel use, the site is being pursued by pharmaceutical companies, Fallon said, and with the city's permission his next building could be redesigned with higher ceilings for light lab use.